Earth Day Goes Digital

Earth Day—a day that honors protecting the environment—is April 22. Did you know...? For every mile you don't drive, you help prevent nearly a pound of pollutants from being spewed into their air.

This year, Earth Day organizers will mark the event's 50th anniversary with a Digital Earth Day. They will provide live coverage of global digital mobilizations from their social media accounts, as well as online teach-ins and more.

Join them at earthday.org, on Twitter, and on Facebook.

Most Southern California transit agencies are posting updates online, or call 511 to be connected to rideshare/transit information.

Please Note:

The Rideshare Office recognizes the challenges of commuting during the coronavirus pandemic. We will not be canceling any Club Rideshare memberships at this time, even if rideshare minimums are not being met.

"Why I Rideshare"

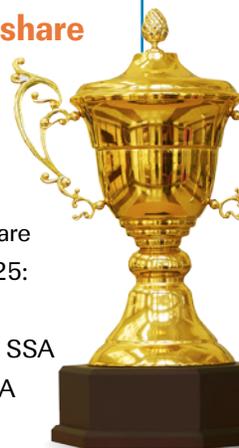

Mary Pezzetti rides her bike about two miles to where she works at Irvine Heritage Park Library. "I love being out. I love the little bit of exercise I get," she says. "It improves my mood." She rides daily unless she has to get to an off-site meeting or it's raining. "It's such a wonderful experience especially on a beautiful day. Most of the time I'm riding around with a smile on my face."
