The Results Are In...

The results of the annual transportation survey conducted last fall are in—and it turns out quite a few County of Orange staff are using alternatives to driving alone.

In general, instead of one-person-per-car arriving to County worksites, it's 1.53 (or about one and a half) persons per car—a 26% increase over last year!

This is calculated by averaging the number of drive-alone commuters with those using other options, such as carpools, vanpools, bus, rail, bicycling and walking, as well as telecommuters.

"It's unusual to have such a big drop in the drive alone rate in just a year, but this was a very unusual year," says Denise VanStratten, the County's employee transportation coordinator. "Most of the change is due to the large number of people working at home during the week of the survey. As employees start returning to the office, we want to remind them that the Rideshare Office is here if they need help or if they've had any changes to their commute."

Faster, Easier Construction Updates on the 405

It's now easier to find the construction updates you need for your commute on the I-405 in Orange County, thanks to a redesign of the improvement project's online portal.

Visitors will find a clearer path to the most requested items, including maps, closures, detours, and construction information.

A Few Quick Commute Reminders

With the spike in Coronavirus cases in Southern California, we want to remind employees who rideshare to work:

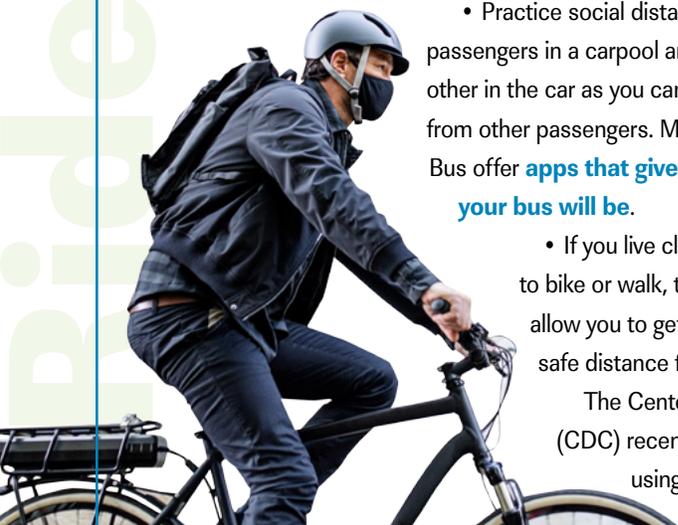

- Wear a mask or face covering over your nose and mouth—it is required on transit.

- Practice social distancing. Limit the number of passengers in a carpool and sit as far away from each other in the car as you can. On transit, keep your distance from other passengers. Many agencies including OC Bus offer apps that give a heads-up on how full your bus will be.

- If you live close enough to the office to bike or walk, these are options that can allow you to get to work while keeping a safe distance from other people.

The Centers for Disease Control (CDC) recently updated its guidelines for using transportation—read it here.
